THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1911.

Entered at the Greenville, Ky., postoffice as second-class matter.

Just after Col. Astor had been married he declared he was happy. May he not find that this second venture will not result in a disaster.

The jury convicted Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., of wife murder, and fixed his punishment at death in the electric chair. The evidence appears to have fully warranted the verdict, and the execution of such a degenerate, perverted character will not be a loss, but a protection to society.

How seriously the late strikes in Great Britain have affected trade is shown by August reports of a falling off in imports during the month of $7,000,570, and a decrease of $12,780,915 in exports. After all this frightful loss due to stoppage of work on the docks and rails the matters of difference are to be arbitrated. It would have been better to arbitrate before going to war.

The Canadian farmers are now harvesting their great wheat crop of 200,000,000 bushels and getting ready to harvest a market for it, September 21, by voting for reciprocity. A cattle buyer at Winnipeg tells the stockmen of the Northwest his company will pay $5 per head more for cattle if reciprocity shall be approved. It will be observed that the ratification of the tariff pact has a direct bread and meat interest for the people of both countries, who understand that freer trade means cheaper living.

Even in the free spending Far West the high cost of living is at last coming home to the housewives. The nickel until now has been the smallest piece of money in general circulation; and it was looked at with something like contempt—a good coin to throw to the newsboy for his paper or give to the youngster to buy a stick of candy. For almost every other purpose the "nick" (a silver dime) was the ordinary unit of value. It has been discovered, however, that much money could be saved in retail buying; in the long run it makes a difference whether one pays 32 cents or some multiple of 5 cents for a dozen eggs, for example. In Salt Lake City not more than 20,000 pennies are now in the banks, and practically none are in circulation. It is believed that if 2,000,000 one-cent pieces could be scattered through the cash registers in the small stores there would be an appreciable saving in the cost of filling the market basket, to say nothing of the saving in petty expenditures if a smaller money unit were employed.

Nothing is doing so much to break down the tariff bars that impede free trade between the nations as the steadily advancing cost of living. In France the food famine has been the cause of riotous outbreak. As a consequence the Government has approved a scheme to ameliorate the situation by facilitating the importation of cattle and frozen meats by installing refrigerating and storage plants, of which there is a lack in France; by demanding that the railways lower their rates for the transportation of food, and by suspending the tariff on foodstuffs. Of course, these are only temporary expedients for alleviating distressing conditions growing out of a general failure of crops; but they serve to show the only true method of deliverance. The fewer impediments to bar the free interchange of commodities the greater the opportunities for the sons of men to live and let live.

The State Fair at Louisville this week is by far the largest and most comprehensive that has been given. All departments are right up to the mark, and in agriculture, live stock commerce, women's work, manufacture, the State is making a grand showing that is instructing, enlightening and delighting the largest attendance ever known. There is no greater force for development than such an institution, and from the rapid strides being made by our people, we will soon have a State Fair that will rank in every respect with those of the North, East and West, which have for years been one of the greatest factors in the development of those sections.

The Church of Silence.

Word comes from several sources of the wonderful little "Church of Silence" which Mrs. Russell Gurney caused to be erected in London. It stands facing Hyde Park in Uxbridge road, with open door, beside which appears this inscription: "Passengers through the busy streets of London, enter this sanctuary for rest, silence, and prayer. Let the pictured walls within speak of the past yet ever continuing ways of God with men." No preacher is to stand in the pulpit, no one will be performed, no creed compels the spirit to resign its freedom. It is merely a wayside place for spiritual recreation.

It has, however, been fashioned to uplift the spirit. Mr. Herbert P. Home was the architect, Mr. Fredrick Shields the decorator. The room is lighted from above, the form and general appearance being "distinctly ecclesiastical." Neither arches nor pillars obstruct the vision, but the eye is allowed to rest upon the two hundred paintings which Mr. Shields—now, like Mrs. Gurney, the founder of the church, gone to his final rest—executed through many years of impassioned labor. They are related to each other, and present the story of the Christ. Where the altar would stand in an ordinary church is the most imposing painting of all, overarched by a circle and inscribed: "Lo, I am with you all the days."

The impression made upon the mind and the emotions is said by those who have visited this chapel to be unique. It was undeniably the outgrowth of a devotional passion such as made the thirteenth century distinct for beauty and fervor and faith. The face of Mrs. Russell Gurney, in whose mind the idea had birth, and whose perseverance and fortune made the thing possible, is one of almost angelic purity and elevation. The architect offered his services; the painter wrote: "I might almost say that I never dipped my brush in paint without a fervent prayer that the meaning of the heart might express itself through the canvas."

That this spot, so noble in its purpose, so beautiful in its execution, will prove a solace to innumerable weary and fretted souls cannot be doubted.

Birds as Money Savers.

The destruction of insects eating birds should not be overlooked by those attempting to explain the increased cost of living. Government statistics show that our agriculture has suffered to the extent of millions of dollars through the ravages of insects. The annual loss has increased steadily until it has reached a figure which the brain cannot grasp.

In the cotton belt of the South the boll weevil, which has increased with such rapidity as to become a plague, took as a toll in one year more than $25,000,000 worth of a product upon which every man, woman, and child is dependent. And in this same section is permitted the wholesale destruction of birds, seventy-five per cent. of whose food is the crop-destroying insect. We shall pay for this loss sustained largely through folly and ignorance, when we buy our clothes. Grain, vegetable, and fruit culture in many localities is so hampered by noxious insects that the farmer "drags home the stings harvest" discouraged and with good cause for abandoning his occupation. Every dollar's worth of damage which the bird guards could have prevented must come out of the pockets of the people.

Poison sprays and other artificial means do not successfully check the damage done by insect pests. We must look to the wild birds for substantial relief. They will not fail us, even if we do no more than simply let them live.

McCracken has the largest stock of dolls for timepieces ever carried in the county, and can fit anything from the court house clock to a toy watch.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man may scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Good health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and new, clean, healthy tissues. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. Constipation is the most unclean uncleanliness. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

The Earth Mother.

The wise old Mother lets man play a white When as a child with toys about the earth.
Ere she shall welcome back with sweet, slow smile.
The foolish one to whom her throes gave birth.
Fog at his tether as he moves he knows,
Deep in his heart that she is always by.
He feels her presence underneath the snows.
And in the rain of autumn hears her sigh.
The thrill of spring and summer's tith the snare.
Remind him of her breathing breast:
the sea.
Is her sweetest, and where the temples
flame,
She goes forth decked in mood of pleasantry.
The more he strays, the longer battles grim
With foes or friends, playing man's shifting role.
The surest doth there slow uprise in him
The yearning to come back and ease
his soul—
To take her hands and look into her face
And kiss her forehead, while he hears her say:
"Welcome, my dear, to the world you want to play.
Welcome to love, and sleep, and hot-day."

Warning! Cut Your Weeds.

Beginning Monday the city authorities will proceed against all persons who have allowed weeds and other unsightly and unsightly matter to accumulate in and around their premises. Proclamations and notices have been tried, but many persons have failed to heed them, and since the visit of the state sanitarian it has been determined to have his suggestions carried out. There will be a close examination made in all sections of town, and all persons who have failed to put their premises in proper shape will be proceeded against.

Farmers' Telephones.

A dollar a month does not go far enough after it gets into the telephone company's treasury to satisfy the manager who has to pay the n-keep and operating expenses on a big rural line system, and keep a little small change to hand over to stockholders once in six months. He has to cut too many corners, and run too many chances of getting caught short of a bank balance by a fleet storm, or a law suit.

"Twelve dollars a year is too low for farmers' line service on the average system, with the quality and cost improved as it has been in the last few years. It is time to start after this rate. The farmers can afford to pay more—why should they not be induced to recognize value received?"

Of course we know what the farmers do when it is proposed to raise the telephone rate. But can this go on forever? What is the best way to get this thing into better shape? Some have done it already. Telephony. (The Independent Telephone Journal.)

Win. S. Fox Commits Suicide.

Mr. Win. S. Fox, one of the most widely known men in Muhlenberg, committed suicide in his home at Paradise last Friday afternoon by shooting himself in the back of the head with a revolver. He had recently returned from a sanitarium, where he had taken a cure for the whiskey habit, and appeared to be completely relieved, getting along splendidly. It is supposed that he became detached, as he shot at his wife once or twice, without cause or warning. She ran from her home to that of a neighbor, returning with help in a few moments, before they reached the house heard a pistol shot, and found the dead body.

The affair is a shocking one, and has caused wide sorrow. Deceased was a fine business man, had many friends, and will be missed in his community.

Jefferson Davis Highway.

The whole country, and particularly western Kentucky, is deeply interested in the proposed Jefferson Davis Highway. At a meeting held in Hopkinsville last Saturday representative men from these parts made and listened to rousing addresses, and the route from Hopkinsville to Bowling Green was selected, passing the Davis old home, of course. The counties west are planning to continue the boulevard to Paducah, and there is much rivalry, with liberal money donations pledged, as to the most feasible way. No better memorial to a dead man or gift from a live one could be provided than a good road, over which his fellow-man could quickly and comfortably travel. Seven such highways are projected from Washington City, some of them reaching thousands of miles, and it is hoped the local spirit will so enlarge this that in a few years we may have a network of highways that will be a pleasure and a source of wealth to the whole country.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Circuit court is grinding right along, and by day and night sessions the business is being disposed of according to docket. It is likely that the session will close by the middle of next week.

J. T. Hendricks, vs. L. & N. R. R. Co. obtained a judgment of $3,500 for false arrest.

Willis & Meredith obtained a judgment of $1,500 against the Elk Valley Coal Mining Co. for a fee.

Arthur Baker was awarded a judgment of $500 against the Crescent Coal Co. for personal injuries.

J. G. Hendricks, administrator of Genevieve Hendricks, secured a $400 verdict against the American Express Co. for failure to deliver a tank of oxygen.

Koll, Morton & McCord were given a judgment of $905.81 against the Black Diamond Coal & Mining Co. on an account.

Drakesboro Coal, Coke & Mining Co. vs. Black Diamond Mining Co. were given $50 on account.

Tolpha Robinson secured a judgment against J. P. Rice for $81 on warranty of a cow.

The case of J. H. Reed vs. I. C. R. R. Co. was dismissed on peremptory instructions. In a former trial Mr. Reed was awarded a judgment of $6,500, but was reversed by the Court of Appeals. On this trial it developed that no new proof was to be introduced, so the judge ordered the case dismissed.

In the case of the Greenville Milling Co. vs. the I. C. R. R. Co. for damages caused by fire, Judge Sandidge overruled the motion of the defendant for the transfer of the case to the U. S. District Court.

Caldwell & Greer were given a judgment of $5,000 against the Elk Valley Coal & Mining Co. on a note.

Facts and Fallacies About Tuberculosis.

Although there are many things that we do not know about consumption, or tuberculosis, there are some that we do and a few that we are in the act of learning.

We do not know, for example, what makes for susceptibility and what for immunity. Strong and robust persons are sometimes stricken down with it; invalids and convalescents from other diseases are no more susceptible to it than are other people, and it is possible to live for an entire lifetime in the condition known as "run down," or "weak" without becoming tuberculous.

People still speak of consumption as "inherited," but it is not inherited. A child may be born with a certain tendency to it, but if proper measures are taken early enough, and kept up steadily and long enough, this tendency can be overcome. A child whose parents before them, perhaps for generations back, have been poor breathers, will probably inherit a small, meager chest, and will therefore be the natural victim of the consumption germ as soon as it reaches him. That child will have to be taught to breathe. The tendency to pigeon-breast can be overcome, and a narrow chest developed to normal capacity; but to do this, the child must be kept constantly in good air, and taught how to develop and use the lungs. A pigeon breasted child who is being brought up on the coddling process—oversheltered, overfed and overclothed—is in as much danger as if he lived under the famous sword hanging from a hair.

Another long-lived fallacy, which is a great pet with many people, is that other diseases "run into" consumption. A man comes down with an attack of typhoid fever or pneumonia; after the attack is over his convalescence is slow and doubtful; finally, unmistakable signs of tuberculosis appear, and he says, "I had pneumonia, and it ran into consumption." But if he had been examined before the pneumonia started, he would have been found to be already consumptive; in fact, it would really be more sensible to say that his consumption "ran into pneumonia."

It must be remembered that consumption may be present a long time before the germs begin to appear in the expectoration. In spite of hygienic precautions, we must all come in contact with the germs of consumption many times in a lifetime. These germs we shall either breathe in or swallow. We cannot escape them. But there is an armor that is germ proof. It is an invisible armor, woven of oxygen—fresh air.

Everything Tending Southward.

In the financial circles of New York and New England there is a growing sentiment that the South is to be the center of the greatest business and financial activity of the country. The leading bankers of the East, many of whom in former years were somewhat skeptical about the South as a field for investment, are now very free in admitting that this section is the most inviting field for investment. The change of sentiment is very pronounced. No one can mingle with the financial people of New York and Boston and other Eastern centers, as well as with those in smaller cities of the Middle and New England States, without being greatly impressed with the unanimity of sentiment as to the great prosperity ahead of the south. In portions of the West this sentiment is equally as pronounced. The men who led in the great colonization enterprises of the West and the Pacific Coast are now finding in the South a field for activity which is claiming their attention as never before. Scarcely a day passes without a report of the sale of some big tract of land to Western people for colonization, or for reclaiming, in order to prepare it for colonization work later on. No phase of Southern development in the last decade has been more striking than that which we now see in the purchase of large tracts of land in all portions of the South for settlement by Western people. It is one of the most interesting phases of American development. It means the utilization of millions of acres of land that have heretofore been practically valueless and the bringing into the South of tens of thousands of the better class of farmers from other sections.

As the financial people of the East and the colonization men of the West are beginning to understand that this section is to offer the broadest field for activity in the country. Here great forces are concentrating for industrial upbuilding which will result in an enormous expansion of the manufacturing and mining and railroads interests of the South.

Scarlet Fever.

Scarlet fever or scarlatina—the names are synonymous, although often erroneously supposed to denote two distinct diseases—shares with diphtheria the unenviable distinction of being one of the two most dreaded and dreadful diseases of childhood. That is not to say that certain diseases are not more often fatal, but they are not so common, nor are they in general so likely to have serious consequences.

Scarlet fever is an infectious disease, although it is not known positively what germ causes it, nor is it always easy to trace the mode of infection.

An attack may begin in a variety of ways, but in general three forms are recognized. In the usual, and fortunately the mildest form, the disease begins with shivering or chilly feelings, sometimes a convulsion, fever, loss of appetite, vomiting, and often a sore throat. In twenty-four or forty-eight hours the rash appears. It is a general raspberry colored eruption which disappears on pressure, and returns slowly, so that if the end of a penholder is drawn firmly over the skin a white line is made which persists for several minutes.

In another the first symptoms are the same, but more severe, and the signs of inflammation of the throat are marked. Inspection of the throat shows it to be very red, the mucous membrane often ulcerates, and it is frequently covered with a leathery-looking membrane like that seen in diphtheria. The inflammation travels to the nose, and often to the ears, in which case it may cause permanent deafness. The child appears much more ill than in the single form, a fact due to absorption of the poisons produced by the bacteria in the throat.

In the worst form, malignant scarlet fever it is called, the attack is sudden, and the child is seen from the first to be very ill, the fever is high, the lips are blue, there is more or less drowsiness, and the little patient is evidently poisoned through and through. If he lives long enough for the rash to appear, it is not bright, as is the ordinary case, but dusky and not very extensive. This variety is really a form of blood poisoning, the bacteria themselves, and not merely their excreted poisons.

CALL DUCKS ARE SMALLEST
Bred More for Show Room Than for Profit There is in Them for Market Purposes—Good Decoys.

Call ducks are bantams, and are bred more for the show room than for the profit there is in them for market. There are two kinds of call ducks, the Gray Call and the White Call, and it is only a matter of plumage as to which is the better of the two. They are both of the same size, shape, and build, and differ only as regards color.

The Gray Call is very similar in color of plumage to the Rouen, and is indeed called by many the Rouen Bantam, and the white is sometimes called the Bantam Bantam. Their uses are only for the show room, or as decoy ducks for wild duck shooting.

For the latter purpose they are sometimes crossed with the common duck or the wild mallard. This latter cross is considered excellent, the progeny being better adapted for usefulness and domesticity.

When breeding call ducks smallness of size is the first consideration; the smaller they are the better. The art of skillful breeding for the show room are being used in keeping down the size of these ducks. If breeding has been resorted to, while the hatching, scanty feeding, and unwholesome food have been the means that have retarded their natural development.

The head of the call duck is small and slender; the short and broad neck of medium length, and back comparatively short; the breast is round and full, and body short, round and compact, with medium-sized wings; the thighs are short and stout, and shanks short.

The Gray Call duck is a beautiful little bird, with a rich, lustrous green head, dark hazel or brown eyes, lustrous green neck, with a white ring on the lower part of neck, as in the Rouen. The back is of ashy-gray plumage mixed with green on the upper part, while the lower part and rump are of a rich, lustrous green. The under part of the body on the sides is a beautiful gray, which grows lighter toward the vent, and the ends in solid black under the tail. The wings are grayish brown, mixed with green, and have the broad, rounded, metallic marks of green with metallic reflections of green and blue, distinctly edged with white. The primaries are a dark dusky brown. The tail feathers are of a dark, shaggy brown, the outer web in old birds being edged with white; the tail coverts are black, with very rich purple reflections. The bill is greenish yellow in color, while the shanks, toes, and webs are orange, with brownish tinge.

The duck's head is deep brown, and has two light tan stripes on each side, like the head of the Rouen duck, running from the bill to a point behind the eyes. Her bill is a brownish orange color, and her eyes are dark hazel or brown. The neck is light brown, pencilled with darker brown; breast, dark brown, pencilled with lighter brown; back, light brown, marked with green, and the under parts and sides of body are light brown, each feather clothed with rich dark brown. The plumage of wing is light brown, mixed with green, and is marked by a broad bar of rich purple edged with white; the primaries are brown. The tail feathers are of a light brown color, with distinct, broad, wavy pencilling of dark greenish brown; tail coverts are brown, with broad pencilling of dark brown or greenish brown; thighs are dark brown; shanks, toes, and webs are orange or orange brown.

The White Call is pure white in plumage throughout, and feathers of any other color will disqualify it. It is in every respect like the Gray Call, except in plumage, in the color of the eyes, which are a blue, the color of the bill, which is a bright color, and the color of the shanks, which are a bright orange. No standard weight is given for call ducks.

Mortality Among Young Ducks.

The cause of mortality among young ducks may be traced to overheat, dampness, getting wet, lack of grit, grey head lice, sudden showers, delayed hatching, exposure to sun, lack of fresh water, drinking vessels too shallow, breeding stock out of condition.

Chaff Litter in Henhouse.

The litter of chaff, etc., which accumulates in the barn should be put in the henhouse. The hens will scratch it over and obtain seeds and pieces of clover that will do them lots of good.
